

CAROLE COOK

(Biography)

Carole Cook, who plays Mrs. Featherstone's friend, Barbara Foster, was last seen on Broadway as Maggie Jones in "42nd Street," and before that in Bernard Slade's "Romantic Comedy." An accomplished stage actress, Carole has appeared in such diverse plays as "Father's Day," for which she won an L.A. Drama Critics' nomination as Best Actress, "Hello Dolly," "Private Lives," "Stop the World," "Auntie Mame," "The Boys from Syracuse," "The Little Foxes," and her one-woman show, "Dress Up."

Ms. Cook's feature films include "The Other Side of the Mountain," "The Gauntlet" and "American Gigolo." She is a television favorite on "The Merv Griffin Show" and has had recurring roles on "MacMillan and Wife," "Kojak" and "Chico and the Man."

"Summer Lovers" is a Randal Kleiser Production, written and directed by Kleiser. Mike Moder was the producer and Joel Dean was executive producer. It is a Filmways Picture.
